"Come & Visit
Southwold in Suffolk"

Sitting in a stunning spot where the River Blyth flows into the North Sea, Southwold's natural beauty is matched only by the charm of the town itself. With its picturesque, traditional East Anglian buildings and irresistible attractions, Southwold makes a charming destination for a seaside break, or even just a day trip.

No visit to Southwold would be complete without a walk along its coastline and a look at the beautifully preserved Victorian lighthouse, followed by a stroll along the pier, where you can enjoy the vintage amusements and seaside souvenirs. If you work up an appetite, you can enjoy refreshments at one of the town's wonderful traditional tearooms or fish and chip restaurants.

Southwold is a shopper's paradise, with its unique collection of boutique shops selling handmade designer clothes, fine local produce and stunning works by local artists. With so much going on, it's hard to tear yourself away from Southwold, but if you can, the town also makes a great base for exploring the rest of East Anglia, with Aldeburgh, Lowestoft and Great Yarmouth all within easy reach.

So if you've been looking for a Great British holiday destination that really has everything, choose Southwold for your next getaway.
